A child's earliest relationships and care provide the foundation for healthy growth and development. Therefore, we are dedicated to providing family-centered services that nurture, strengthen and empower caregivers, promote positive attachment relationships and encourage the development of young children to their highest potential.

How Can We Help?

- Support in developing a positive, nurturing relationship with your child
- Talking about and learning about your child's growth and development
- Learning coping skills related to your child's crying, sleeping and eating difficulties
- Understanding infant, toddler and preschool needs and behaviors
- Support in stressful life situations that impact parenting
- Talking about and building your support system
- Talking about your experience with depression, stress and difficulty coping with a new baby

YOU ARE IMPORTANT TO YOUR CHILD!

Services Include:

- Interventions in the child's home, in the office and/or at school & tele-health if needed
- Play Therapy
- Relationship Based Therapy
- Strengths based approach
- Trauma Informed
- Tracking your child's development
- Working with a trained professional who understands the development and behaviors of young children and the importance of parent-child relationships
